FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Gary Pope Jr. Exhibits Work at the Library

Local artist Gary Pope Jr. is exhibiting his work at the Bay County Public Library throughout February 2015.

"In my artwork, African culture is an important part of my art because my culture is what makes my artwork have meaning to me. I feel that my culture makes me a better artist because both American culture and African culture influence me. Both cultures help me as an artist," said Gary.

Gary likes the audience to "read" his artwork as if he or she is reading a novel. He wants the audience to not only read his artwork but enjoy it as well. He feels that art is educational, and has a message for all people.

Drop by the library throughout the month to view the works of this wonderfully talented artist! The Bay County Public Library is located at 898 West 11th Street in Panama City. For more information on Gary Pope Jr., visit his website at www.popefineart.com.
